

Crowd Management [RESOLV-142]

Online Course Approved by the US Coast Guard

About

Passenger ships carry a very large number of people, so it is vital for crew to have an understanding and an ability to assist passengers in any emergency situation.

STCW 2010 Code calls for crew to follow approved training in crisis management and human behaviour, with the training focused on applied psychology for competent assessment of both passenger and crew reactions.

To this end, Crowd Management training is required for all personnel designated to assist passengers in an emergency.
